

Virginia Association of Assessing Officers
Historic Structures Adaptive Re-Use Tour
July 14, 2016 / 5:30 pm – 9:00 pm

This tour will focus on the adaptive re-use of historic structures for a use other than for what they were originally intended. The evening begins at the Dabbs House, originally known as High Meadows. This domestic structure from the 1820s served as Robert E. Lee's headquarters during the Civil War, an almshouse for the poor and a police station, before becoming a historic house museum with exhibits and a research library. The tour continues at the Henrico Theater in the Highland Springs area of eastern Henrico County. This Henrico County facility was constructed in 1938 as an Art Deco movie palace and today is used as a community arts center. The evening concludes at another Henrico County landmark, the Mankin Mansion. The 1924 mansion was built as the home of Edward Thurston Mankin, the owner of the of the South's renowned brick foundries. Attendees receive a copy of the National Register nomination.

Instructors: Representative from Henrico County, Dabbs House; John Zanino, Henrico Theater; Ramirez Family, Mankin Mansion

There is no graded exam. 3 hours CE